

ABSTRACT

A testing system useful for food products employs a multispecies testing array to test for presence or amount of a plurality of organisms in a sample by detecting characteristic sequences. The system provides correlation between microbial profiles and sensory, physical, ingredient, and processing characteristics such as ingredient quality, flavor potential, and the likelihood of carrying otherwise undetectable or difficult to detect organisms.

1263099.1